Extra Credit Myth: The god of Google Fights Fake News

As a young god, the god of Google began to learn the importance of knowledge, sites, and the internet. He developed the giant search engine named after him, Google, to help humans search for knowledge. He also created different utilities to help young minds do great things. Humans were able to research, create documents, forms, and slides. They were also able to manage their many creations through the Google platform.

As Google got bigger, and older, and stronger the human race is now able to use his utilities and tools for great things. He hired multiple internet wizards to help expand his search engine. His utilities and tools are used all over the United States of America and around the world because of how useful and user friendly they are. Students across the globe use Google to create amazing things every day.

The world became clouded by the darkness of fake news. Humans believed things that were wrong. The god of Google rose up as a truthfinder to the challengers who created and sent out fake news. His mission was to make sure none of the fake news was on his search engine. He demolished all records and sites of fake news. He challenged humans to question authority and what was being told to them. The god of Google gave humans the truth they deserved in order...

But how does it end? Where's page two?! You'll have to ask sixth-grader Sawyer Bouwkamp
